Discover Taiwan

A geological marvel, our island, set at ocean's edge, boasts an ancient culture, where the best of human endeavor has been stored up and lives on today. For visitors, this means an amazing concentration of old and new to be experienced through activities that cover every taste and temperament. From Buddhist rituals to high-tech wonders, and lakeside retreats to thrilling mountaineering, Taiwan will stretch the most demanding imagination. Our culture of welcome has come down through 5,000 years of tradition, and you'll find that it still comes from the heart.

Transportations Easy Access

By Air

Taiwan has five main international airports with international scheduled flights: Taiwan Taoyuan International Airport, Kaohsiung International Airport, Taipei Songshan Airport, Taichung Airport and Tainan Airport. Each offers convenient direct links to major countries.

Getting around Taiwan

By Domestic Flights

Taiwan's domestic air network provides flights to link 17 airports, serving major centres like Taichung, Tainan, Hualien and Taitung, as well as off-island territories such as Kinmen, Matsu, Penghu, Green Island and Orchid Island.

By Train

Taiwan High Speed Rail

Taiwan has an extensive and efficient transport infrastructure, making travel around the island and its cities convenient and stress free. The Taiwan High Speed Rail (THSR) covers 345 kilometres along the west side of the island, whisking passengers from Taipei in the north to Kaohsiung in the south in just 90 minutes.

Mainline Rail Network

Taiwan also has an established and extensive mainline rail network providing an inexpensive means of getting around the island. The network has stations conveniently located in the centre of cities and towns.

By Metro System (MRT)

The municipalities of Taipei and Kaohsiung have metro systems called the MRT, providing very cheap and convenient transport. They are rated as some of the best in the world with unparalleled levels of punctuality, reliability and cleanliness.

By Bus, Car and Taxi

Twenty-four-hour bus services for long distance trips are provided by most bus companies, while overseas visitors can easily hire a car with an international driving licence. Taiwan also offers an abundance of cheap, safe and reliable taxis.

By Two Wheels

Taiwan has an island-wide cycling route network totaling around 1,000km, inviting visitors to explore endless rolling fun on two wheels. In addition, Taipei, Kaohsiung and many other cities have developed public-use bicycle systems that visitors can conveniently utilize during their stay to access tourist attractions, minimizing carbon emissions and leaving only eco-friendly footprints.

Time for Nature

At first sight of the island's crystalline lakes and lush gorges, it's abundantly clear why Portuguese explorers called Taiwan 'Formosa', or 'beautiful island'. Two-thirds cloaked by verdant mountains, its eight national parks offer a stunningly diverse landscape to explore, from climbable cliffs and volcanic craters to white-sand coral beaches and tropical forests. On land or on water, it's time to discover one of nature's least-known playgrounds: Taiwan.

Taiwan has been abundantly endowed with mountains; 258 of its peaks are more than 3,000 meters high, making the island geographically unique. As mountains can be found anywhere, mountain climbing is a popular leisure activity in Taiwan. The mountains on the outskirts of the city can be reached within a short time, and they can be easily used for team-building activities. In addition, there are 8 national parks and 13 national scenic areas which offer a variety of distinct topographic landscapes. These natural attractions await your discovery in Taiwan.

Kaohsiung is a thriving international metropolis. Known as "Taiwan's Maritime Capital," and the winner of the 2013 International Awards for Liveable Communities, the city has worked hard in recent years to develop its green industry. Dedicated bikeways make Kaohsiung a place worth exploring on two wheels, suitable to take a short bike ride. The creative and still growing Pier-2 Art Center is at the heart of a cultural-creative bloom that is now underway. Several disused Kaohsiung Harbor warehouses have been put to new uses, including for exhibits, live shows, and large-scale outdoor installation artworks and graffiti-style murals. Xizi Bay, on the coast just north of Kaohsiung Harbor, is a swimming beach known for its clear blue water and beautiful sunsets. Each time of the day has its special attraction.

▶ Bopiliao

Bopiliao is a street which developed during the Qing period with the establishment of Laosong Elementary School. Located next to the school grounds, the street was originally reserved for future expansion of the school, and construction of new buildings was not allowed. Thus the street has retained its Qing period and Japanese structures in remarkably intact shape. Bopiliao stands today as an area which combines tradition and innovation, with an alluring mix of history and creativity everywhere you look. The street represents Taipei's urban appearance in its art, culture and tourism-related activities. Since 2009 it has been the subject of close attention by the public and has been popularized through art education and cultural property promotions.

▶ Lanyang Museum

The structure housing Lanyang Museum was designed by Artech Architects led by Kris Yao, who was inspired by the cuestas commonly seen along the Northeast Coast of Taiwan. The Museum broke formal design conventions by utilizing geographical symbols to reflect the local culture and allowing the building to blend in with the natural landscape. Looking down across the Lanyang Plain from above, the square fields of various sizes and colors transform with the changing of the seasons. Despite its large size, the Lanyang Museum blends into the surrounding environment and engages in a friendly dialogue between architecture and nature to create a new spatial experience.

In 2015, the Creative Boutique, a creative business incubator, received a makeover in a nod to its predecessor of a century ago – Taiwan's first marketplace and grocery bazaar.
